FIRST VICTORIA DIRECTORY.

PREFATORY REMARKS.

A DIRECTORY may be thought by some quite superfluous in a place of the size of the good City of Victoria. Twice before, however, has one appeared, and not without some degree of success.

The author of the first one has again ventured to appear in a work of the same character. From his intimate knowledge of the Colony, and some of its requirements, he has had unusual facilities for compiling a correct work of the kind named; and would observe, that his list is not limited to that of the City proper, but embraces most occupiers of land in the Country Districts, and a majority of business-men and others on the mainland.

In the course of the many years elapsed since the last publication there have been many changes to record. The Colony of Vancouver Island, that was long prosperous under the sway of Governor, now Sir James Douglas, who in connection therewith controlled the legislation of the then Colony of British Columbia —has twice since then altered its position. Unity of action in Council and execution under the then system, arising from the interests of the Executive being on the one hand bound up in the prosperity of the freer and the older community, and on the other hand, identified with the advancement of the mainland in all material development; unity of action rendered the community, as a whole, prosperous.

Liberty of every kind was not so great as at present. The Hudson Bay Company, to whom the Colony is in many respects indebted, had not yet withdrawn from the prominent position it at one time held. A struggle of more or less intensity was carried on between a population daily increasing and a Corporation yet unaccustomed to competition.

The representatives of the people increased gradually from six, which formed the House of Assembly, when the Colony was proclaimed in Nov. 1859; to ten in the next House, elected in 1860; to fifteen in the popular branch of the Legislature, from and after 1st June, 1863. This, the last House of Assembly, was put an end to by the Proclamation of last year, uniting the Colonies under the name of British Columbia.

During the administration of Governor Douglas the practically united Colonies were almost continuously prosperous, their early beginning rapid. And not the Island alone, for the mainland was already remarkable for its system of roads and their durable character.

But just then political agitation had gained a certain head, and become to a certain extent a habit, not of the people but of a class who aspired to rule them. Through the efforts of this party, and but a small and noisy party they were, the latter part of the rule of Governor Douglas was subjected to much, as it afterwards proved, unmerited obloquy. A man, who from his high position with the Hudson Bay Company must needs be suspected of partisanship, was triumphantly, when too late, proved guiltless. Personal contumely had even been resorted to. By the machinations of a class of politicians, at least they took the credit or the onus of it; by their machinations a change was brought about, not of Governors alone but a more radical change.

In the spring of 1864, Vancouver Island and British Columbia became for every purpose not only legally but actually separate. The unity of action, which all lovers of the two dependencies desired to see strengthened and intensified, was for the time defeated and counteracted. Retrogression insensibly occurred. With the two Governors, divergence in the public opinion of the two Colonies crept in and increased. Of this, the Bute Inlet massacre afforded one test. An offer of service to assist British Columbia by a large number of individuals, tendered through Governor Kennedy, as the result of a public meeting, was rejected. One hundred thousand dollars was expended on the mainland and no satisfactory results obtained.

An administration which opened on the Island with considerable popularity, and another administration which was also very popular on the mainland, could not and did not work harmoniously together. Fifty thousand dollars was voted, and about $35,000 actually expended by the Vancouver Island Assembly to provide or erect a suitable residence for Governor Kennedy. The popularity of the latter also increased on the discovery of the Leech River mines; to aid in the discovery of which, and in exploration generally, His Excellency had the tact and the foresight to offer $2 for every one subscribed by the community. The mines are reported to have yielded in the first season $150,000.

As to the mainland, the Legislative Council of British Columbia, in the joy of the moment at having a separate Governor, voted many officials an increase of pay, and raised their Governor's salary, by vote, from £4000 to £5000! His, in their eyes, successful termination of the Bute Inlet affair, was a further title to their regard.

But separation and indifference between the Colonies presently assumed the aspect of hostility to Vancouver. It was sought to build up New Westminster at the cost of Victoria, as though the latter had legislated adversely for New Westminster. Victoria had been favored by nature and position, and through commercial freedom had prospered. New Westminster must be made at least to rival it. The money which, judiciously expended, would have opened up the resources of both Colonies, was squandered in subsidizing a steam company to take ocean steamers to New Westminster; when considerably less than the amount so expended would have doubled the steam communication of the two Colonies with the outer world, to the increased prosperity of both.

Further, a system of differential duties was carried out, by which the amounts levied ad valorem on goods, was calculated not on that at the place of purchase, but at the place of last shipment. The short-sightedness which dictated this measure prevented its being seen that had the quantity of merchandize received and transhipped at Victoria been doubled or trebled, the duties received on the mainland would probably have far exceeded the fruits of such one-sided legislation.

It would be tedious to enumerate any more instances of the adverse feeling gradually creeping up against the Island on the mainland, or rather its Capital.

Time wore on: by a singular fatality the Acting Colonial Secretary for Vancouver Island—he had at least the blame for much of the mischief produced—the Colonial Secretary, soon after the advent of Governor Kennedy, was a man, a stranger to the place, equally with the Governor, whose intimate friend he was. The Governor and the Colonial Secretary had, no doubt, been blinded by the large Civil List imposed on the Colony by the Duke of Newcastle, as a sine qua non of separate Government, for which it was erroneously thought in Downing street, we had been panting. As an old resident here justly remarked, a Civil List of $200,000 we could manage to meet, though at a very early date the effects of separation began to be felt. But Governor Kennedy and his Colonial Secretary prepared a budget of $487,000 (if the author's memory is good); and when this was discussed in the House of Assembly, and the amounts cut down, the Secretary brought forward a supplemental estimate of about precisely the amount so cut off!

Vancouver Island having to pay all her own officials, a separate Staff, and with diminished resources in every way from which to draw the funds, as first, her own private business had diminished, times had altered; and again, her Executive could no longer divert for her benefit a portion of revenues from the sister Colony to which she was fully entitled as part of a prosperous whole. The Island prayed for economy.

The administration of Governor Kennedy was marked by a thorough discussion of the question of Crown Lands, which, we believe, it was the object of his official life to pass to the Colony and get the latter to meet the whole Civil List. An exhaustive report appeared from the Committee of the House of Assembly, appointed to examine the matter, but no results followed; and in Vancouver Island the Crown Lands are yet what their name imports.

While displaying considerable administrative ability, Governor Kennedy, it was soon evident, was not friendly to popular institutions. He quickly perceived that there is a weakness of purpose in a number of legislators, and loss of power and time.

But he failed to notice that increase of popular power is the order of the day; and he, no doubt, miscalculated the resources of the Colony. It required a friend and an old resident to estimate at its full value the altered position of the Colony; one, magnificent in resources, of which no alien influence and enmity could seriously affect the progress, a Colony of which the rightful population, speaking of 1859 and 1860, was absorbed by California, by means of interested mis-statements and from want of direct communication with Panama. The very riches averaging in gold exports alone in 1859, $150,000 per month were credited to Portland! But when, after separation, the inimical feeling and legislation of the sister Colony was brought to bear, in addition to its other evils, the morale of Vancouver became affected. Depression, serious depression, gradually set in. Her Legislature, it may almost be said, in a fit of despair at the turn things were taking, prayed the Home Government, prayed earnestly, and prayed repeatedly for Union of the Colonies, to stop the ruin which all saw approaching.

Relief came so suddenly as to be unexpected.

Governor Seymour, of the mainland, enjoyed great influence at home. Several letters written by him, in February, 1866 (and March, 1865), from a foreign Capital, where he was temporarily residing, produced a certain effect on the authorities in Downing street. Coupled with the urgent prayer of the Colonists for Union, they brought about the singular result:

1. Of causing the prayer of the petitioners to be granted with a celerity unexampled in British Legislation.
2. The clause which stood in the Bill of Union (of itself likely to be unpalatable to the petitioners), ordered to be printed by the House of Commons, 11th June, 1866, leaving the Bill for approval of the Vancouver Legislature; was struck out.
3. Governor Seymour himself, who had animadverted to freely, not to say unfairly, on the feelings and resources of the Island Colonists, was sent out as Governor.

The feelings of the inhabitants of Vancouver might then have been expressed shortly as one of baffled anger and extreme disappointment. However, before the arrival out of the new Governor, a certain resolute calmness prevailed among men of the world, who resolved still to give him a loyal, if not very cordial reception.

The Capital question, long an irritating matter unsettled between Victoria and New Westminster, produced some faint show of interest yet remaining in public matters.

The first session of the new Legislative Council was held at New Westminster. By a large majority Victoria was voted the Capital. On fresh reference to the Council by the Governor, at their second session, and after recent despatches from Downing Street, a fresh majority of nine decided by vote the Capital question in favor of Victoria. It is to be hoped the sittings of the Council will be altered in conformity.

It seems a marvel to the author that so much stress should have been laid on the situation of the Capital. It is, of course, well that the Legislature should not be out of reach of ascertaining the popular wish. In the present instance, the decision of the matter may affect beneficially the general good. It came none too soon, the old feeling of restlessness was beginning to work. A meeting was held in September, having for its object to hasten Confederation with the British Provinces of North America, and certain steps were soon taken by some of the leaders of the movement. It will barely be necessary to say that a meeting, and a great deal of persistent advocacy in favor of Annexation to the United States, had some year before, ignominiously failed.

This brings us to the present time: as a summing up, it may be said, one good result has at last been finally brought about by these changes. costly as they have been. Legislation will now be ONE, and will display a breadth of feeling for the good of the united communities, before impossible. We are, in short, where we ought to have stood in 1864; where we were, in fact, before Governor Douglas resigned, minus our Assembly, minus our cheap Government. We have a uniformity in our method of revenue, probably a considerable advantage, on the whole. We have to struggle back to our old vantage ground if we cannot even introduce full responsible Government. Already the estimates for this year are at a much lower figure than last. But we might greatly retrench, and we shall do it by slow degrees, and show a balance of revenue.

Should Confederation ensue before these good results are brought about, it will probably place us in a much better position at an earlier date, and leave us the more to appreciate the change when it comes.

The introduction of politics in a work of this class has been unavoidable, from the fact that the summary runs over so long a period, and the changes have been so affected by Government alterations.

Follow, a few figures and statements which will say more for the prospects and material wealth of British Columbia than pages of expression of hopes or fears.

But before giving these, the author would state that the work contains:

An Alphabetical List of Business-Men and Householders.
An Official List, with Salaries.
A Postal List; the Latest Rates.
The British Columbia Tariff.
Abridged Extracts of the Incorporation Act.
Several of the more Important Corporation Bye-Laws.

The total amount of treasure (dust and bars) shipped by the		Bank of British Columbia, for 1867, was		$499,603 12
Do	do	Bank of British North America	do	1,145,781 00
Do	do	Wells, Fargo & Co.	do	215,266 0
		Total.....		$1,860,651 04

The whole of the above was forwarded through Wells, Fargo & Co.

For the whole year previous (1866) the total quantity for the three Banks, which left the Colony, per Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, was..... $1,625,311 00

And, from accounts already received from Cariboo, and the good opinion generally entertained from the extended prospecting of last year, and the fact that the mining season has commenced some six weeks earlier, the gold yield for 1868, it has been already estimated, will far exceed that of 1867.

N.B.—For other statistics, which did not come to hand in time for insertion here, see farther on, Index.

Vancouver Island, or we will now say British Columbia, is a country rich in resources, mineral outside of the precious metals, and coal, and commercial as a receiving and distributing centre, with matchless harbors; and now exporting lumber of the finest quality. It has an area of agricultural land, small perhaps in proportion to the total surface, but amply able to support the largest population the country will hold till able liberally to pay for imported food. The manufacturing interest needs but to be encouraged to assume large proportions.

But a country that can export its half million sterling of gold to a population of 6,000—produce with a handful of miners 5,000 tons of coal a-month—and as a common occurrence, imports and distributes yearly its half million sterling of merchandise, and last, not least, with a climate, which, it would be a mere truism to say, cannot be surpassed; has no cause for serious depression at temporary mismanagement and misrule. Its motto has ever been and probably will be, NIL DESPERANDUM. As Colonists, we shall find our strength to lie in thinking less of governing and more of developing material resources, when a glowing future is before us. E. M.

ERRATUM—For Bank of British Columbia, &c., Page 24, read, Inspector, Alex. Watson; Manager, W. C. Ward; Acting Accountant and Cashier, C. S. Jones; Clerks, E. H. Jackson and J. B. Fisher.

AFTER a delay of two weeks, and owing to repeated disappointments on application, the author is not able to offer so complete a statement as he could wish; and is only in a position to give the following few additional figures :

The total IMPORTS of merchandise in Victoria for the eleven months preceding the imposing of the tariff [a large increase of course, due to the desire to avoid duties] were	$2,039,000
The total imports on which duty was paid in the United Colonies for 1867, was	1,068,060
The total amount of duty paid	256,250
The total imports for the FIRST QUARTER, 1868 [not the largest quarter in the year] approximate estimate	349 000
Amount of duty paid the first quarter, 1868, against $27,000, in 1867	80,000

The total EXPORTS of coal from the Port of Nanaimo for the year 1867 were ..... Tons	19,273
The total produce of the Nanaimo mines for the same period, of which a portion also was exported on mail steamers, was	31 174
The total produce of Coal for 1866 was	25,212
The total produce of Coal for the FIRST QUARTER, 1868, of which was exported 9,387 tons !	13,804

The total exports of lumber and spars, unfortunately, could not be obtained. In one mill, however, that of the Messrs Moody, they largely increased from 1866 to 1867. A new mill has been started at Burrard's Inlet, under Capt. Stamp, specially resorted to for spars. At both these mills, shipments in 1868 are far in excess of the corresponding period in 1867. A mill in Vancouver Island, owned by Mr. Sayward, produces its two million feet yearly, chiefly for local consumption.

The rich trade in furs must not be forgotten here, while speaking of exports. Of this, it need hardly be said, the Hudson Bay Co. have the largest share.

The really noticeable feature for the Colonies this year, viz., the agricultural, owing to irregularity in some quarters, is the most imperfect, in point of statistics. The valuable information usually transmitted to the Lands and Works, by the country magistrates, has not come to hand, except for the least important and last settled districts. For these, however, the accounts are most flattering. Taking this information, and that received from various sources, of well-authenticated private information, the author thinks he is justified in stating that the quantity of land under cultivation, and the number of head of stock for the Island alone, may be taken at an average for all the districts, of 100 per cent. on last years' (1866) figures.

There was brewed in Victoria for the last twelve months an aggregate of 3,000 hhds. of ale, which is fast shutting out English barrelled ale from the market.

With these few additional remarks the author would close this imperfect sketch.

IRON AND STEEL WIRE ROPE.

ESTABLISHED IN 1857.

Office and Depot, 519 Front Street, · · Works, North Beach, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Agents for R. S. NEWALL & CO., the well-known Wire Rope Manufacturers, of Newcastle on-Tyne. We keep a full assortment of their Wire Ropes on hand of all sizes and lengths

In Bond---or Duty Paid.

MINING COMPANIES, FERRYMEN AND SHIPMASTERS

Are informed that Wire Rope can be furnished them, considerably under the cost of Hemp, or Manila Rope of EQUAL STRENGTH, and we would call their attention to the following IMPORTANT FACTS: Wire Rope does not stretch or shrink by change of weather; it does not absorb water like Hemp or Manila Rope; it is as easily spliced under all circumstances; it is from 3 to 5 times as durable as the best of Hemp or Manila Rope.

Iron Wire Rope weighs 40 PER CENT. LESS THAN HEMP, and is less than one half the diameter, for equal strength. STEEL WIRE ROPE WEIGHS 60 PER CENT. LESS than Hemp, and is only one third the diameter for equal strength.

Wire Rope is almost exclusively used by the leading Mining Companies and Ferrymen, and thirty years experience has tested its merits and proven its great economy and superiority over any other kind of Rope for

SHIP'S STANDING RIGGING.

Iron Wire Rope, Steel Wire Rope, } From 1 to 6 inches in circumference, for hoisting from Mines, &c., &c.

Galvanized Iron Wire Rope, for Ferry Ropes, GUY Ropes, SHIP'S STANDING RIGGING, &c.

Flat Iron Wire Rope, Flat Steel Wire Rope, } 2×½ inch to 6×1 inch, for hoisting from Mining Shafts.

Iron and Copper Wire Cord, with Blake's Metallic Cord Sash Pulleys, } ¼ to ¾ inch circumference, for hanging Windows, Sashes, Pictures, Dumb Waiters, Signal purposes, &c.

Galvanized Iron Wire Strand, ½ to ¾ inch diameter for fencing in land, &c.

NOTE.—Steel Wire Rope is about one third the weight of Hemp Rope of equal strength. Its extreme lightness effects quite a saving in freight to remote points. It is admirably adapted for Derrick Fall Ropes, and with suitable sheaves will outwear five or six other ropes, being as tough as lead and as strong as steel. See following table of weights, strength, and sizes of different Rope of the same strength:

IRON.		STEEL.		HEMP.		EQUIVALENT STRENGTH.
Circumference. Ins.	Weight. pr 100 ft.	Circumference. Ins.	Weight pr. 100 ft.	Circumference. Ins.	Weight. pr. 100 ft.	Working Load. Pounds.
1⅝	40	1½	28	4¼	78	1,600
2½	90	2	60	6	140	3,700
3	138	2¾	85	7⅞	230	5,000

A full scale of weights and strength, with prices, can be obtained from any of our Agents, or by sending to A. S. HALLIDIE & CO., who will forward the same by return mail. WIRE OF ALL KINDS, for sale in lots to suit.

Galvanized and Ungalvanized Wire. Telegraph and Baling Wire. Brass Wire. Copper Wire.

WIRE SUSPENSION BRIDGES.

We are prepared to contract for the erection of SUSPENSION BRIDGES and AQUEDUCTS, guaranteeing our work; and can refer to the many Bridges erected under the superintendence of A. S. HALLIDIE, C. E., during the last eight years on this coast, of spans from 200 to 400 feet.
